

Work and pleasure intermingle for ophthalmologist Dr. Cory Lessner, founder of the Millennium Laser Eye Centers. The Sunrise-based doctor is the official LASIK provider to the Miami Heat, Florida Marlins, Miami Dolphins and Florida Panthers. He loves all four teams, but his heart belongs to the Panthers. He attends as many as 35 games a season at the Bank Atlantic Center. "I love all sports, but I've developed a true love for the game of hockey," Lessner says. "The pure athleticism of hockey players amazes me. They are also typically unpretentious and just a wonderful group of people to work with." Lessner attends players on and off their respective playing fields, conducting preseason physicals, treating injuries suffered during games and performing LASIK surgeries. "Most athletes will tell you that LASIK has enhanced their game," he says. "Hockey players are able to pick the puck out of the air better, baseball players can see the laces on the ball." Like any true fan, Lessner has high hopes for the Panthers in 2008-09. "I live and die with the team," he says. "Unfortunately, I've been dying the past few years."
